 - a. North Carolina Criminal Law and Procedure (LexisNexis)
 - b. North Carolina Motor Vehicle Laws (LexisNexis)

6. As part of IDS' contract with the North Carolina Advocates for Justice, each public defender and assistant public defender should receive a CD-ROM of Teddy, DWI Trial Notebook.
7. Any other non-SOG publications must be approved by IDS prior to ordering pursuant to the procedures set forth in C., below. An office may maintain a current non-SOG subscription that is not on this list or order more than the allotted number of shared or office copies of any non-SOG publication if the office provides justification to IDS and IDS approves the subscription.

C. Book Ordering:

1. IDS and individual public defender offices ordinarily cannot order books directly from the School of Government or other vendors. Instead, the individual office must email a request to Patty Barbour at the IDS Financial Services Office (Patty.A.Barbour@nccourts.org). The request must include the following information:
 - a. The county and city where the office is located;
 - b. The title(s) of the requested book(s);
 - c. The number of the requested book(s);
 - d. A justification for the request—e.g., a new assistant public defender position was established (please include the attorney's name) or the book is necessary to supplement research in a specific area of the law; and
 - e. The name of a contact person and the telephone number at which he or she can be reached.
2. Public Defender offices have standing authorization to order for newly established assistant public defender positions all of the books listed above as approved for personal copies. To do so, the office should email a written request to Patty Barbour at the IDS Financial Services Office (Patty.A.Barbour@nccourts.org). Ms. Barbour will then forward the request to AOC Purchasing.
3. For any other publications, the office must first obtain approval from IDS by submitting a written request, including a justification for the request and a website address where the publication(s) can be purchased, and emailing it to Ms. Barbour at Patty.A.Barbour@nccourts.org. If IDS approves the purchase, Ms. Barbour will then forward the order and approval to AOC Purchasing. Ms. Barbour will also notify the contact person provided pursuant to C.1.e., above, that the request has been approved, amended, or denied.
4. Whenever there are new releases of the publications listed above, IDS will place a bulk order with AOC Purchasing for all of the public defender offices. If you have questions about new releases, please contact IDS.
5. When an office receives a book order shipment, the office should mail or fax the invoice from the shipment to Ms. Barbour so that she can track receipts.
